Suburban Truck Parts Joins VIPAR Heavy Duty

Owners are industry veterans with many years of experience and knowledge of the Chicago metro market

Crystal Lake, Ill. – Suburban Truck Parts in Worth, Ill. is the latest company to join the VIPAR Heavy Duty network of distributors as a stockholder. The ownership team of Suburban Truck Parts, comprised of Lynn Castiglione, Ron Evans and Roger Egeland, are industry veterans with a deep knowledge of the Chicago market. Suburban Truck Parts has over 100 years of combined experience in truck parts distribution.

Based in the southwest Chicago suburb of Worth, Ill., Suburban Truck Parts serves the transportation-related needs of municipalities, owner-operators, small and medium fleets and independent repair facilities in the Chicago metro area. The company is a full-line distributor of heavy duty truck parts.

"Suburban Truck Parts has a strong leadership team that knows the ins and outs of the heavy duty parts distribution business and how to successfully service a diverse customer base," said VIPAR Heavy Duty president Steve Crowley. "With our portfolio of leading industry brands, we are pleased to work with their experienced management team to help promote their growth."
